NEW YORK -- If you need to get some information for your clients about business and personal use of company-owned jets and helicopters, don't worry: the "Answer Men" are coming.

At the FAE's Tax Planning for Individuals Conference, practitioners with high-net-worth clients can pose their flight deduction questions to "answer men" Ari B. Good, an attorney and shareholder of Good Attorneys at Law and Walter Kraujalis, a managing director with AeronomX, who together will explain the distinctions between business and personal use of private and company owned aircraft.

"We have pretty dynamite topics that are current and relevant," said William H. Jones, chair of the Taxation of Individuals Committee. "The session on business use and personal use of private or company owned aircraft is something we've never done at this conference before."

Attendees at this year's Tax Planning for Individuals Conference, which will be held at the New York Helmsley Hotel on Tuesday, Aug. 19, will also hear from Robert Megna, the commissioner of New York State's Department of Taxation and Finance.

The conference will primarily focus on tax law changes that affect planning strategies for high-net-worth clients. And, as globalization has become reality for more businesses every day, speaker Richard Nichols, managing director of RSM McGladrey, will discuss foreign tax credits, passive foreign investment companies and disclosures in international business.

Although the real estate market is facing tough times, business is still being conducted daily, and planning has never been more important. Cost Recovery Solutions Managing Tax Director Jerome H. Kootman will introduce the concept of cost segregation and how it can be a valuable tax planning strategy for real estate owners.

Other conference highlights include:

- Jeffrey Romond, who handles investment and benefit planning at St. George F.P. will discuss "Net Unrealized Appreciation: A Special Tax- Strategy That Is Becoming More Advantageous than Ever;"
- A New York state tax update from Paul Comeau, a partner with Hodgson Russ LLP; and
- A federal tax update session led by Simon Schneebalg, senior tax analyst for tax and accounting business with Thomson Reuters.

The cost for members is $350 and $450 for nonmembers, and the conference offers eight hours of CPE credit in taxation.
